Project Designer

The birth of Casas+Architects all started with the partnership of two young architects Jose Pedro C. Recio and Carmelo T. Casas. Both of them had their diversified practice in Hong Kong's top architectural firms. The two architects had their international stint from 1976 to 1988 with the major Hong Kong-based international firms before they decided to form their partnership known as RECIO+CASAS in October 1988 which was based in Hong Kong.

In 1990, a Philippine office was opened which spearheaded the firm's involvement as design consultant for the high-rise luxury residential development, The Pacific Plaza at Ayala Avenue, with Arch. Casas as the Principal Designer.

Since then, the firm led by Jose Pedro Recio and Carmelo Casas had become the design consultant for many projects such as One and Two Lafayette Square, Kingswood Gardens, Salcedo Park, the Richmonde Hotel, and the ABS-CBN Broadcasting Studio Complex.

In 1996, another high-rise luxury residential development known as Pacific Plaza Towers in Fort Bonifacio gained prestige for the company.

This brought Arch. Casas back to the Philippines to spearhead this landmark project which was completed in 2000. In 1997, the firm Recio+Casas was awarded the first prestigious title of the Firm of the Year Award by the Philippine Institute of Architects.

Arch. Casas earned his Bachelors degree in Architecture in the University of Santo Tomas in 1976 and passed the National Board Examination in 1978, placing 7th in the Top 10.
